Mr. Conkling's Speech.

The following is Mr. Conknug's speech in the U. S. Senate last Thursday, a shorter no tice of which was made in the Gozette of th t date:

Mr. Cockling presented a petition from a large number of distinguished citizens of New York. He said: I have been requested to preseat this petition, weighty by reason of the subject to which it relates, and by reason also it. The petitioners are cuizons of New York, distinguished not only for their prominence as members of society but for the large large and singuished not only for their prominence as members of society but for the large large large large patient, now they recovered health, cheerful spirits and good appetite—they will tell you by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator.

The cheanest purest of large la members of society, but for the large and varied | in the world. interests they represent. They are men prominent in each of the great political parties of the united in the same happy proportion in any country. I observe among the signatures names which at the recent presidential election were found on the opposing electoral tickets. I observe the names of emineut backers, merch ants, manufacturers, ship owners, scholars, professional men, and other names long and honorably associated with leading enterprises and industries. It would be difficult to select in any State of the Union one hundred and fitty individuals and firms who represent a Complaints, Dyspepsis, Mental Depression, greater sum of property, intelligence, and character, or who, as petitioners, deserve more coracter, or who, as petitioners, deserve more corsideration. The petition is brief, and I will

He then read the petition of New York merchants, bankers and others, expressive of their pleasure at the appointment of a special committee by each House to devise in aus for the amicable count of the electoral vote, and expressing the hope that all party consider tions would be thrown aside, and pure, unselfish patriotism control the action of Congress.

Resuming his remarks, Mr. Coukling said In laying this petition before the Schate, is may not be amiss to add an avowal of my sympathy with its appeal for orderly, lawful, and patriotic action. In executing the Constitution in any instance, and especially in an instance so grave as the one referred to, parlisan feeling as a guide and rule of action can rightfully have no place. Obegience to law, the observance of the Coastitution, and the maintenance of truth is not a party question or proceeding. It is beyond party and above party. Parties may con- JNO. A. But when the contest has been submitted to the ballot box-the final arbitrament of popular contests known in our system-the only duty, the only lawful proceeding connected with it which remains, is to find the honest, true result, to declare it, bow to it, and stand by it.

That is the duty of the hour. It rests on the two Houses of Congress; it rests on the nation; it rests on every citizen of the Republic. That it will be done, and done peacefully, decently, and in order, these petitioners do not, I think, disbelieve. They, in common with all men, may derive confidence from the fact that interest and expediency, not less than patriotism and honor, point in all directions to teach one lesson. Whoever stands on the right and truth will not fall; whoever attempts to stand on wrong and falsehood will be overthrown, I move the reference of the petition to the com mittee to which it properly belong:. DEATH INSTEAD OF MARRIAGE. - The Post of yesterday contained a death notice of Mr. A. Rush Chamblin, of Loudoun county, Va., and to-day we publish some sad facts in connection therewith.

Mr. Chamblio, it will be remembered, was some years ago engaged as a teacher by Mr. Wms. T. Davis, president of the Southern Female College. While here he made the acquaintance of one of the most beautiful. wealthy and accomplished young ladies of Brunswick county, who at the time was on the eve of graduating at this college. The ac quaintance ripened into love, and young Chamblin, about a month ago, started from his home in Loudoun to Brunswick to claim his bride. Upon arriving at Bellefonte, on the Atlantic, Mississippi and Onio railroad, his health, which for some time had been feeble. gave way, and he found himself entirely unable to make the journey to the home of his be trothed. Information of his condition reached her, and she at once visited him and insisted upon the solemoization of their auptials, but young Chambiin, doubtless feeling a premonition of his condition, advised to the contrary, and returned, as soon as he recovered sufficiently, to his home in Loudoug, where he breathed his last just three days after the day upon which he expected to wed his bride. His end was a sad one, and he must be hard hearted indeed whose breast does not feel the throb of sympathetic emotion when he hears the story. His disease was consumption .-Petersburg Post.
